

Because of this, the risks to health for many people may be greater due to exposure to air pollution indoors than outdoors. Children are particularly vulnerable to the effects of indoor air pollution because they breathe in more oxygen relative to their

